Introductory Seminar on IT Career Role Models Platform

The Office of the Government Chief Information Officer (OGCIO) launches an "IT Career Role Models Platform" to provide up-to-date information on information technology (IT) job positions, career progression path and a clear outline of the potential job prospects of IT career in local and multinational companies/enterprises of different industry sectors. This event is part of the wider "IT - You Study, We Hire!" Campaign.

In order to encourage youngsters to make study/career decisions in accordance with their interests, abilities and orientations and at the same time to capture the opportunities of the global mega trend of adopting innovation and technology, the OGCIO is inviting career masters of secondary schools, representatives of student career units of tertiary institutes and interested teachers to attend the Introductory Seminar on "IT Career Role Models Platform" on 23 November 2017 so that they can share the bright prospects of an IT career and up-to-date information with their students. Speakers from various corporate representatives, including famous organisations like Hospital Authority, Microsoft, JP Morgan, Facebook, Alibaba, will speak on their respective IT professions and share their passion of an IT career with the audience.
