Write a 200-word blog to describe a typical day of an employee who works at the organisation that you visited and illustrate how he/ she inspired you in terms of your life planning. (Objective 3) (Task 12)

My Careers Logbook 2015-16

Date: 8-3-2016 Day: 2

Task No.: 12 (Objective 3)

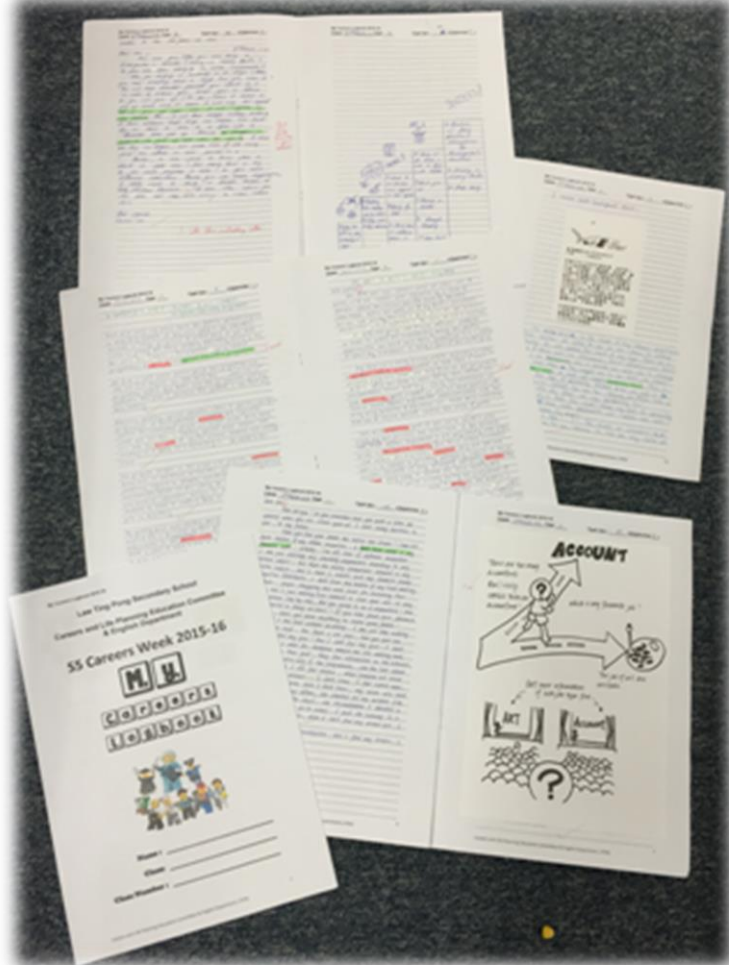

A Day of An Ambulanceman

Every morning John needs to arrive to the Tai Po Ambulance Depot before 7:30 am in order to make sure when unexpected accident occur, patients can receive immediate ambulance aid.

Every day, around 50 emergency calls are made. John needs to be on duty all the time, no matter when he is having lunch, resting or even in the wash room, if calls are made, he needs to get back to his place and wait for the instructions from the ambulance centre.

Ring, Ring, Ring! John run down to the ambulance parking area and be about to get on to the ambulance. However, although it is an emergency services, vehicles on the road may not let the ambulance go through. Therefore, it is important that the ambulance man must be claim and patient, otherwise he don't have the spirit to faced the challenge. After that, while he arrived to the scene of the incident, they needs to make up immediate decision so as to prevent patients condition from worsening and to provide life-support to patient, and also make sure patients are smoothly passed over to medical staff in hospitals.

Although ambulance man are included to one of the professional disciplined services, their work have always been neglected. Even though they have an inseparative part in rescuing patients, their role have not been seen. But still, it was one of the one reason contributed to why I appreciate all the work they have done. In fact, it is essential that the ambulance man needs to stay positive and optimistic as ambulance calls are frequent every day, ambulance men may need to carried the pressure in both mentally and physically. The deaths, sickness and accidents are what they need to deal with every day, so that's why I am so admire. After visiting the depot, it definitely remind and inspire me to take this responsible professional into consideration.
